

ICO consultation on the draft right of access guidance

The right of access (known as subject access) is a fundamental right of the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR). It allows individuals to find out what personal data is held about them and to obtain a copy of that data. Following on from our initial GDPR guidance on this right (published in April 2018), the ICO has now drafted more detailed guidance which explains in greater detail the rights that individuals have to access their personal data and the obligations on controllers. The draft guidance also explores the special rules involving certain categories of personal data, how to deal with requests involving the personal data of others, and the exemptions that are most likely to apply in practice when handling a request.

We are running a consultation on the draft guidance to gather the views of stakeholders and the public. These views will inform the published version of the guidance by helping us to understand the areas where organisations are seeking further clarity, in particular taking into account their experiences in dealing with subject access requests since May 2018.

If you would like further information about the consultation, please email SARguidance@ico.org.uk.

Please send us your response by 17:00 on Wednesday 12 February 2020.

Privacy statement

For this consultation, we will publish all responses received from organisations but we will remove any personal data before publication. We will not publish responses received from respondents who have indicated that they are an individual acting in a private capacity (e.g. a member of the public). For more information about what we do with personal data see our privacy notice.

Please note, your responses to this survey will be used to help us with our work on the right of access only. The information will not be used to consider any regulatory action, and you may respond anonymously should you wish.

Please note that we are using the platform Snap Surveys to gather this information. Any data collected by Snap Surveys for ICO is stored on UK servers. You can read their Privacy Policy.

A large, empty rectangular box with a black border, occupying the top portion of the page. It is intended for respondents to write their answers to the question above.

Q4 We have found that data protection professionals often struggle with applying and defining 'manifestly unfounded or excessive' subject access requests. We would like to include a wide range of examples from a variety of sectors to help you. Please provide some examples of manifestly unfounded and excessive requests below (if applicable).

An individual requested 4 SAR's in the space of 14 months, no further information was added from his 2nd SAR

Q5 On a scale of 1-5 how useful is the draft guidance?

1 – Not at all useful 2 – Slightly useful 3 – Moderately useful 4 – Very useful 5 – Extremely useful

Q6 Why have you given this score?

Clearly and concisely goes through issues we have found on processing SARs, and clarifies issues such as when the timeframe begins. Clear explanations followed examples make the document manageable.

Q7 To what extent do you agree that the draft guidance is clear and easy to understand?

Strongly disagree Disagree Neither agree nor disagree Agree Strongly agree

Q8 Please provide any further comments or suggestions you may have about the draft guidance.

Although technically difficult, a more concise definition of 'excessive' and clarification on issues around what is allowed in regard to 'narrowing' the search for the benefit of the one requesting the SAR.
